"People who know me know that I'm only really good at one thing – tax! I'm the guy that carries the Tax Act everywhere, dinner with my wife, hockey games, to bed. At least I started to look a bit cooler once it was available on iPad!"

The antithesis of the status quo, Kim is driven to innovate new and better ways to do things for the clients he serves, the advancement of the firm, and other professionals in the tax profession. His relentless obsession with getting to know everything in the Tax Act makes him a highly sought-out resource for peers and clients. And while a dyed in the wool tax geek, he has a unique ability to transform the technical details into plain English to make the information real and relevant.

As an energetic, serial entrepreneur himself, he has always been drawn to work with like-minded people. Kim's primary area of expertise is tax and estate planning for owner-managers of private corporations and executives, particularly those who have entered into the tax complexities that come with being affluent. Though admittedly not one himself, he also works with many professional athletes (a guy has got to dream after all).

Deciding years ago that sleep was highly overrated, Kim also makes time to share his immense knowledge through writing, lecturing, teaching, and being an active leader in the national tax profession. His enthusiasm and commitment to make a lasting impression on the tax world knows no bounds. He also recently fulfilled his long-standing goal of receiving admission into law school and is currently exploring ways to fit this ambition into his busy schedule.
