Erica is skilled in both business administration and law, and as a result, she measures a productive day in client correspondences, documents drafted, and meetings coordinated. After working in several different areas of law, it's the complex world of tax that continues to fascinate and interest her. She balances legal files, corporate transactions, and internal documents like Jenga pieces (ensuring the stack never falls), and her forté is finding solutions to help both individuals and organizations.

A key component of Erica's role is regular client communications and relationship management, which is complemented by her outgoing personality and the resourcefulness needed to keep clients up-to-date efficiently. When she's not managing workflow, she stays active and spends time with her two boys.
